It was written by Carole Fredericks, Nick Shuklin, and Toni Cilger. For New Day Has Come, Dion was given a co-writer credit with her producer and husband, René Angélil, who also produced three tracks. The album received a nomination for Best Pop Vocal Album at the 50th Annual Grammy Awards. This was the last album that Dion would record with Atlantic Records, as the company filed for bankruptcy. As a result, her contract was transferred to Columbia Records in 2002. New Day Has Come peaked at number 2 on the Canadian Albums Chart, and was the final album to peak on the chart until Céline: leçons de géographie in 2014. The album debuted at number 1 in Japan, and also debuted at number 1 on Billboards World Albums Chart. It became the highest selling album of the year in France, and in Japan, but did not reach number one on the albums chart there. The album also went gold in many territories, with the exception of Japan, which would only sell 1.1 million copies, becoming Dion's lowest selling album in the country. Background In 2000, a year in which Dion was recovering from the recording and touring of C'est mon corps, Dion took time to rest and prepare for her next album. She recorded two songs for the Celine album, "A New Day Has Come" and "You Have To Choose", both of which appeared on the New Day Has Come (2001) album. Dion also wrote two songs for the New Day Has Come album, "Touch the Night" and "Ne pleure pas", which Angélil reworked into the title track. The remaining songs, including the first single from the album, "Because You Loved Me", were written by Dorian Rolston, Phil Ramone, and Carole Fredericks, who would be credited as a co-writer for the album with Dion. According to Dion, she preferred to write the songs for herself, or collaborate with her husband or other writers. She was pleased with the results, as most of the songs were composed to work on her vocals. The album was eventually recorded at Columbia Records Studios in Los Angeles, California. On 22 March 2002, Dion released the album with an exclusive bonus track, "Water of Love", and it debuted at number 2 on the Canadian Albums Chart, becoming her seventh number 2 album in the country. It was also the final album 82157476af
